

who

new symbol of Russian nationalism

???

Kamil Galeev

@kamilkazani

Kamil Galeev
@kamilkazani

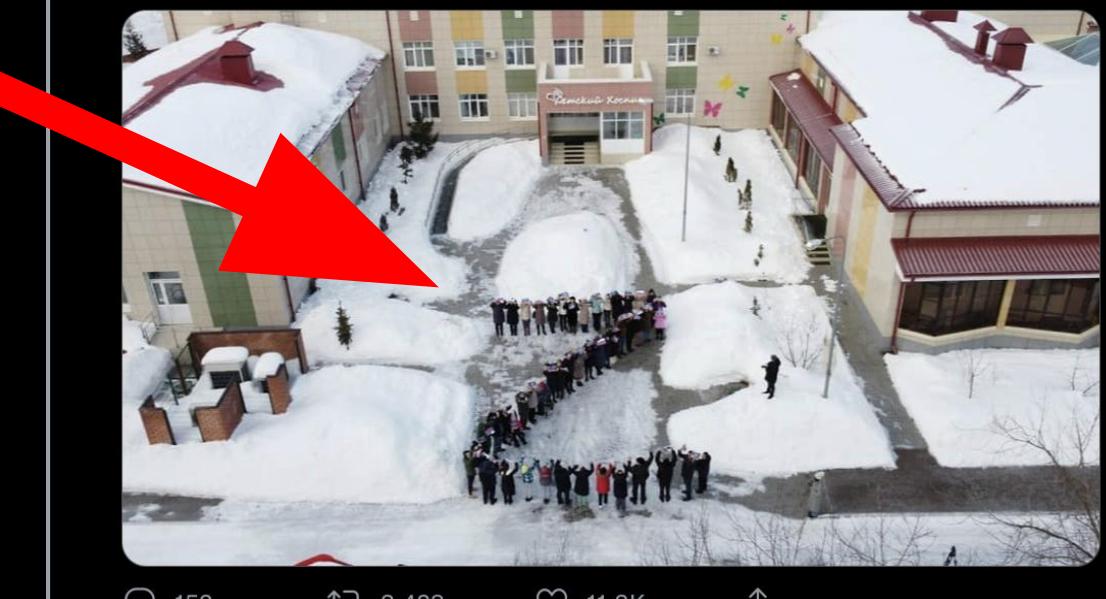

Let's discuss what's happening in Russia. To put it simply, it's going full fascist. Authorities launched a propaganda campaign to gain popular support for invasion of Ukraine and they're getting lots of it. You can see "Z" on these guys' clothes. What does it mean?

Kamil Galeev @kamilkazani · 11h
Ethnic Russians abroad are cheering, too. Here you Russians in Kazakhstan putting Z on their car, while Russian ballistic missiles level Ukrainian residential districts to the ground. When confronted by Kazakhs, they complain about Russophobia of course

Kamil Galeev @kamilkazani · 11h
Here you see terminally ill children from hospice and their parents making a Z formation. Yes, Russians are forcing terminally ill children dying from cancer, and their families to declare their support to Russian invasion of Ukraine. See letters Детский хоспис? Hospice for Kids

Ми воюємо з тими хто з першого разу не зміг написати літеру Z.

KHERSON

Web App

Q 152 T 3,428 L 11.3K

Replying to @JulieSuburban

It would seem so. "The letter Z, which symbolically represents in Russian, is daubed on to the front of Vladimir Putin's tanks military vehicles."

Kamil Galeev @kamilkazani · Mar 6
Replying to @kamilkazani

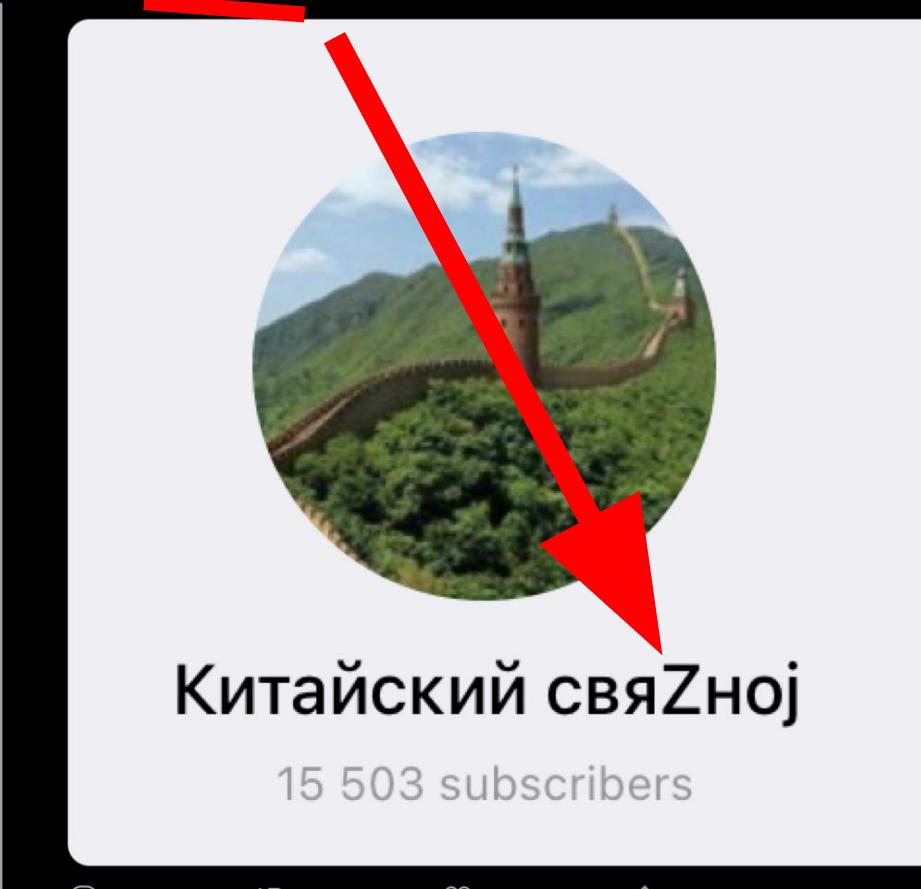

"Z" is a letter that Russian Military are putting on their vehicles departing to Ukraine. Some interpret "Z" as "Za pobedy" (for victory). Others - as "Zapad" (West). Anyway, this symbol invented just a few days ago became a symbol of new Russian ideology and national identity

Kamil Galeev @kamilkazani · 11h
Some argue that Russian people don't support this invasion and this is all Putin's responsibility. Yes, decision was taken by Putin and was a surprise even for his ministers. But once it was taken, it found huge popular support. People are cheering, they're proud and enthusiastic

Kamil Galeev @kamilkazani · 11h
Russian media and social media accounts that stand for the invasion often put Z in their names or logos. That's how you can detect them

Китайский свяZноj

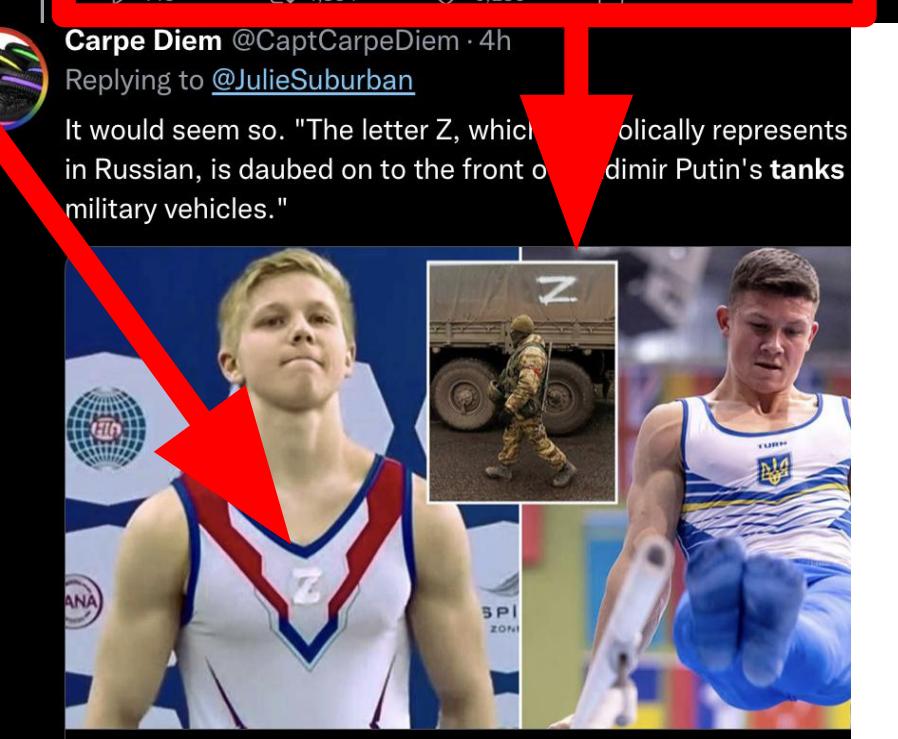

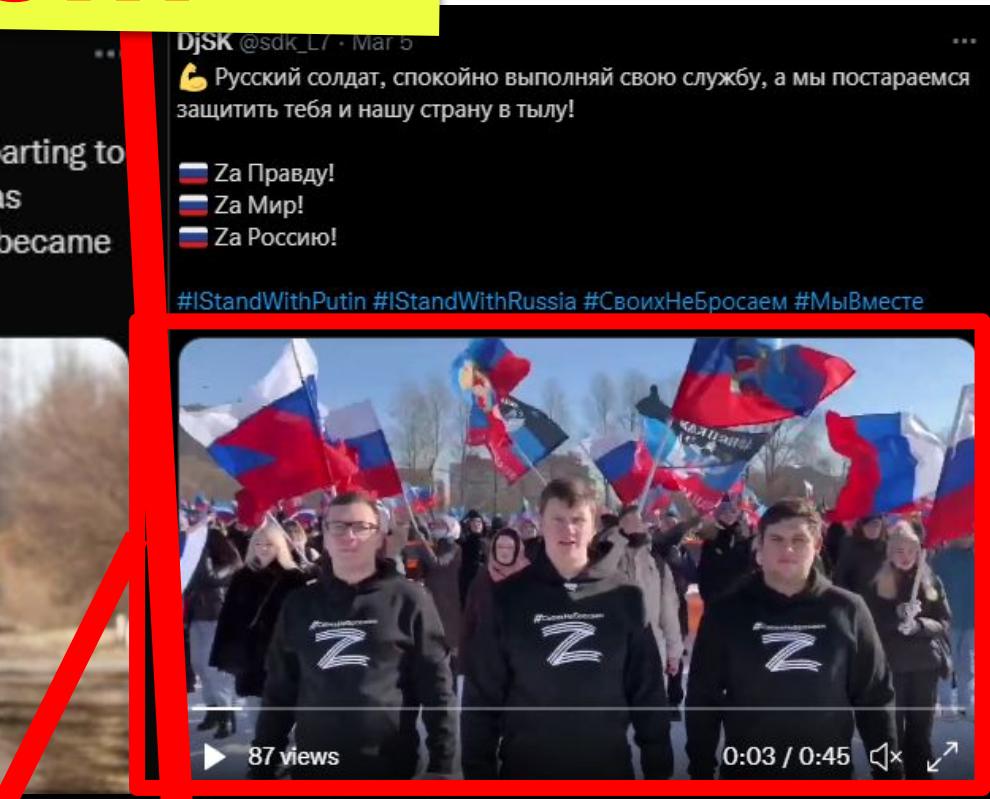

15 503 subscribers

Q 21 T 957 L 5,416

Replying to @JulieSuburban

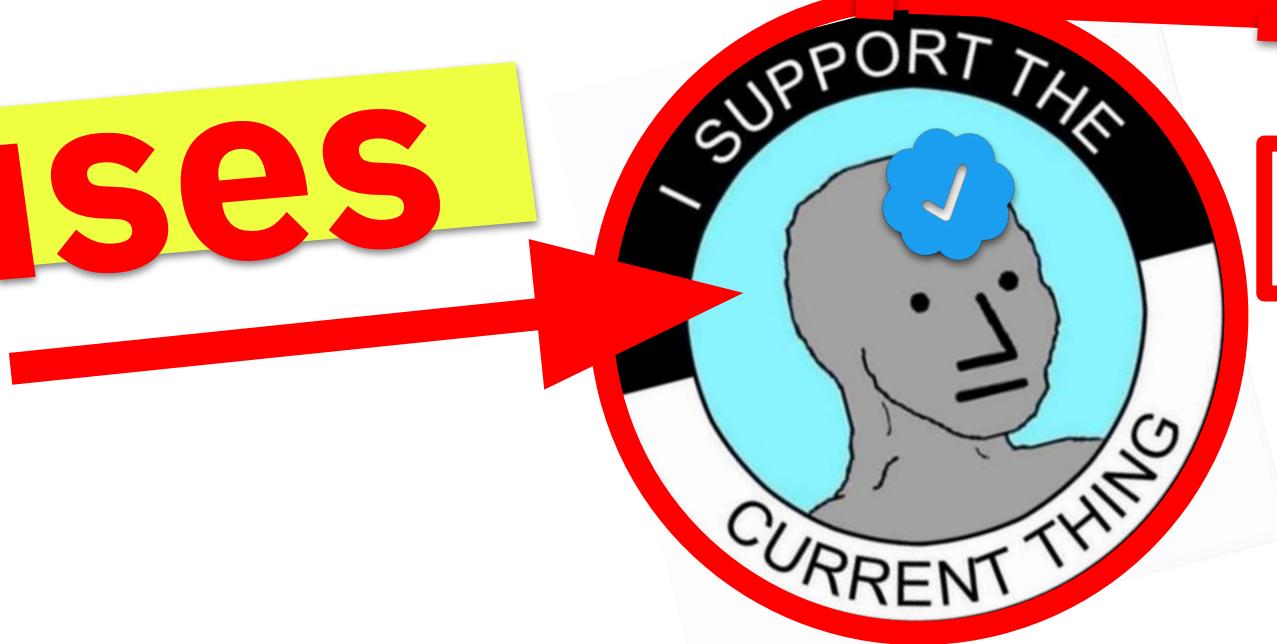

It would seem so. "The letter Z, which symbolically represents

in Russian, is daubed on to the front of Vladimir Putin's tanks military vehicles."

to amplify his message

causes

"Россия! Россия!
В этом слове огонь и сила!
В этом слове победы пламя!
Поднимаем России знамя!"

Russians will always support Russia
#СвоихНебросаем #IStandWithRussia

THIS PICTURE IS TAKEN IN UKRAINE OF A RUSSIAN SOLDIER WITH PUNISHER LOGO. PUNISHER=JUSTICE. HOWEVER WHAT'S INTERESTING IS THE Z ON THE TANKS, VEHICLES AND EQUIPMENT. THE LETTER Z DOES NOT EXIST IN RUSSIAN ALPHABET; ITS COMMS. THE Z IS TO IDENTIFY RUSSIAN WHITEHAT ALLIANCE. Z = Q

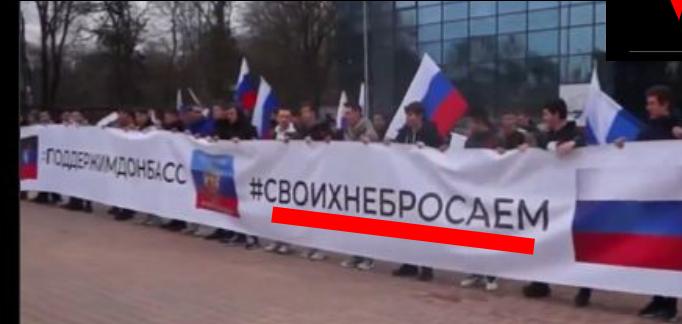

Z

???

@jonnypaul_HI

Yep, Z is the new Q.

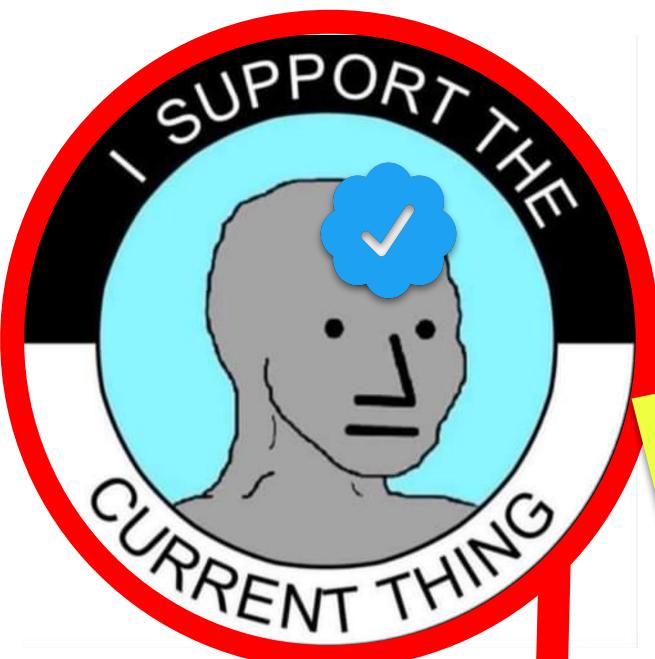

Elissa Altman @ElissaAltman · 1h

Should you happen to wonder why Z is suddenly appearing all over Russian media, tanks, trucks, businesses. Right wing fascist symbol, meant to unite, like Q.

MacRuairidh @macruirdh · 12h ensure adopted by nationalists

"This symbol invented just a few days ago became a symbol of new Russian ideology and national identity." Galeev added.

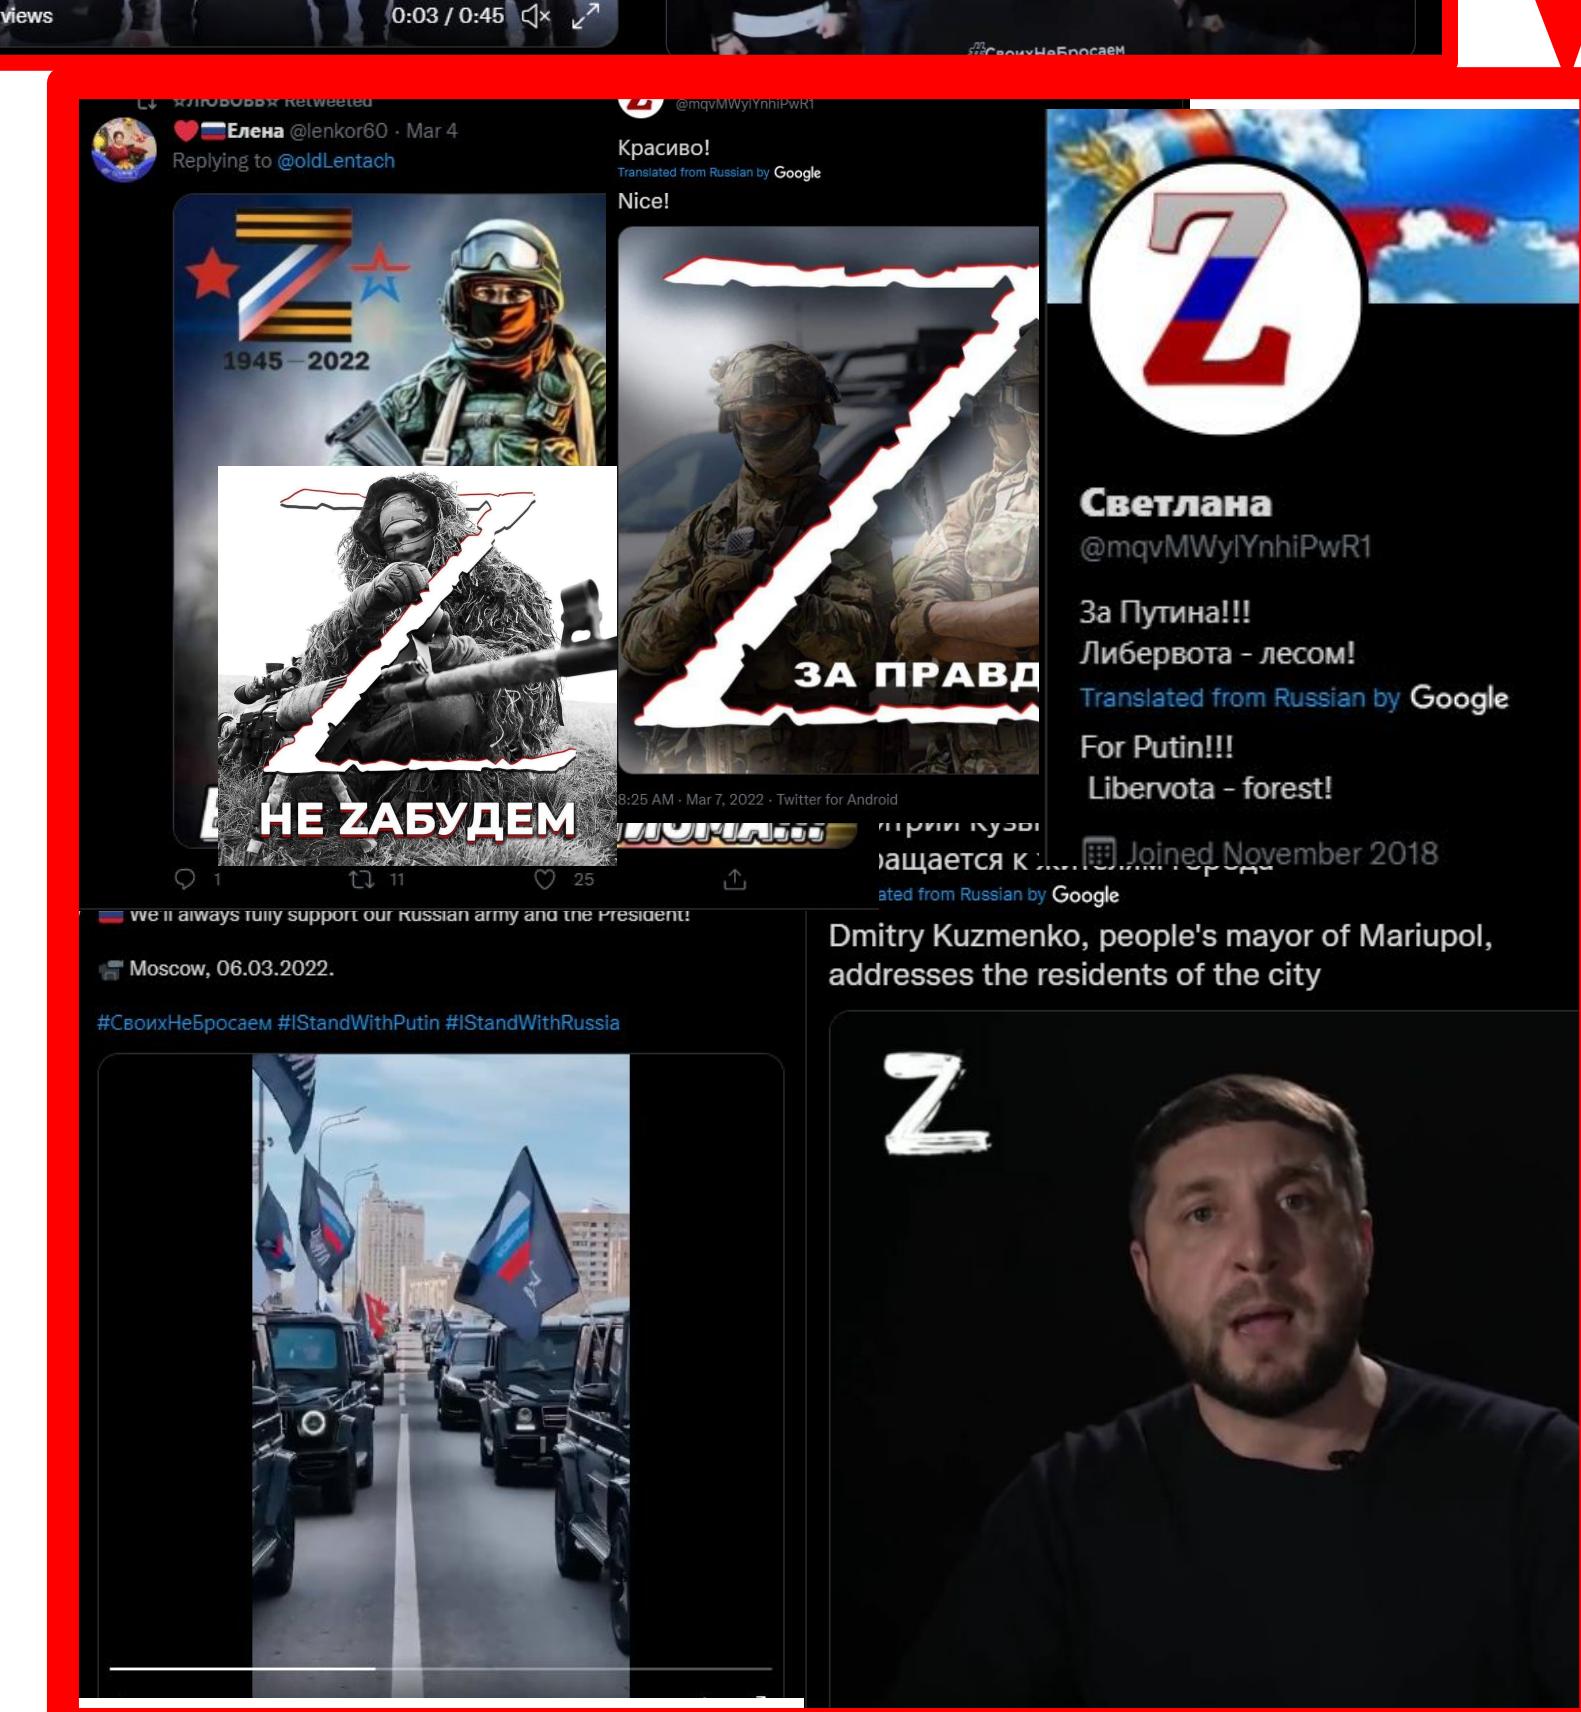

But in the days since Moscow ordered the bloody assault on Ukraine, what started as a mysterious military symbol has become a sign of popular support for the war in Russia, and what analysts describe as the unfurling of a chilling new nationalist movement.

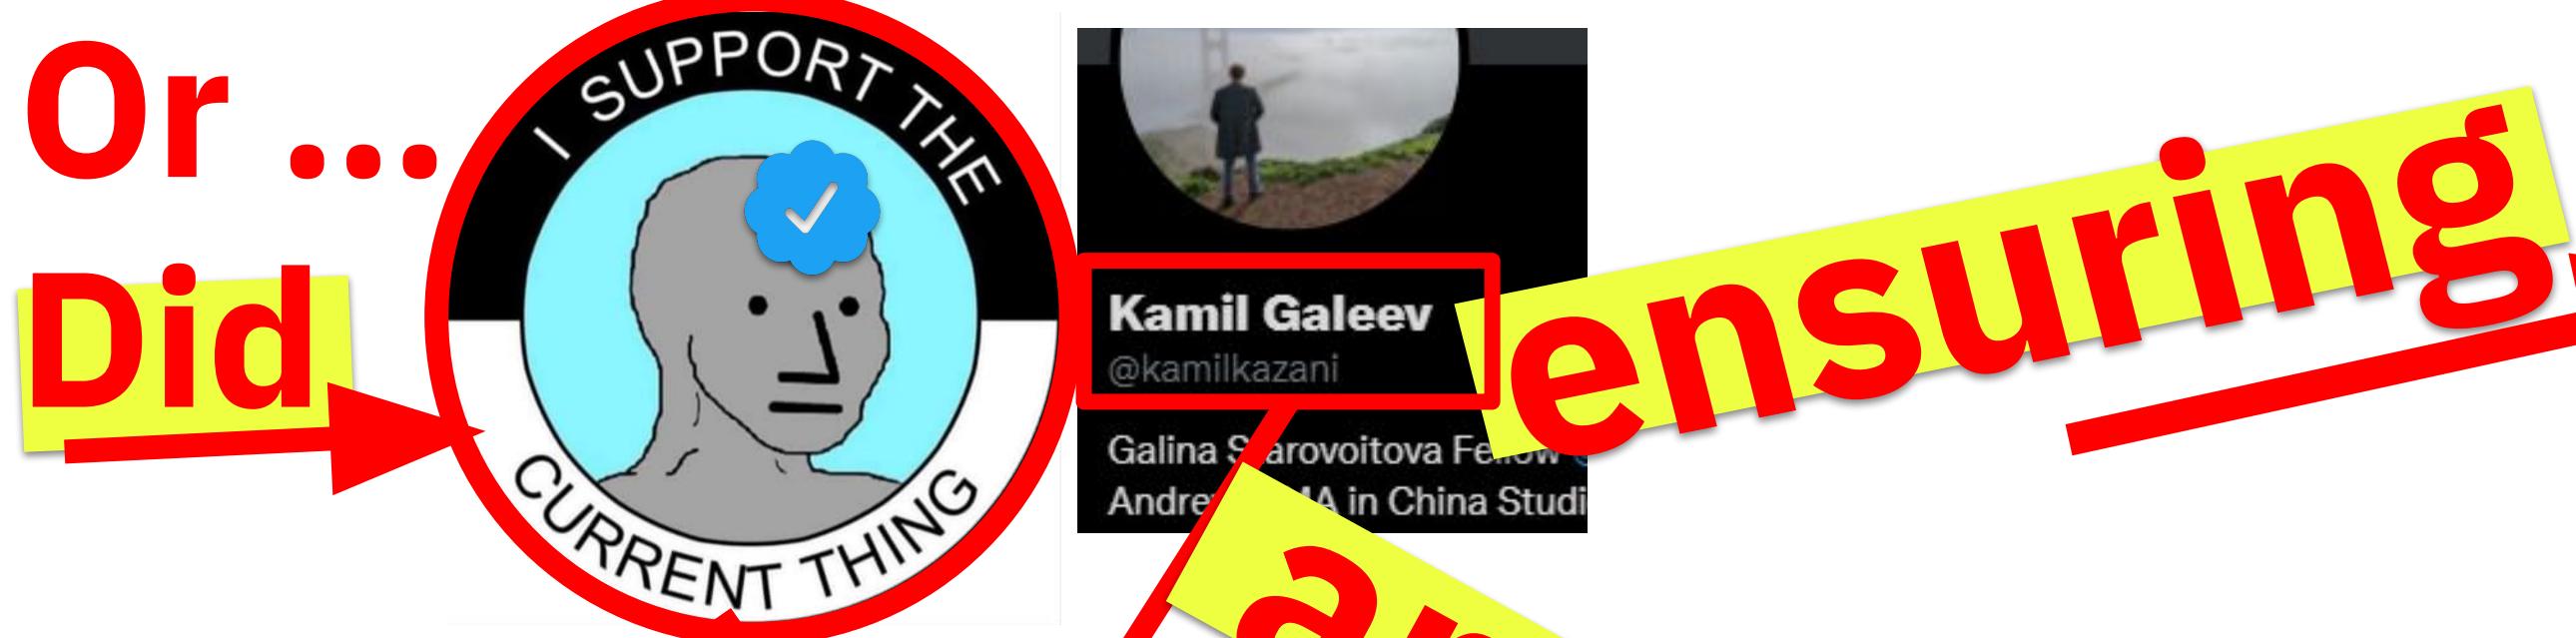

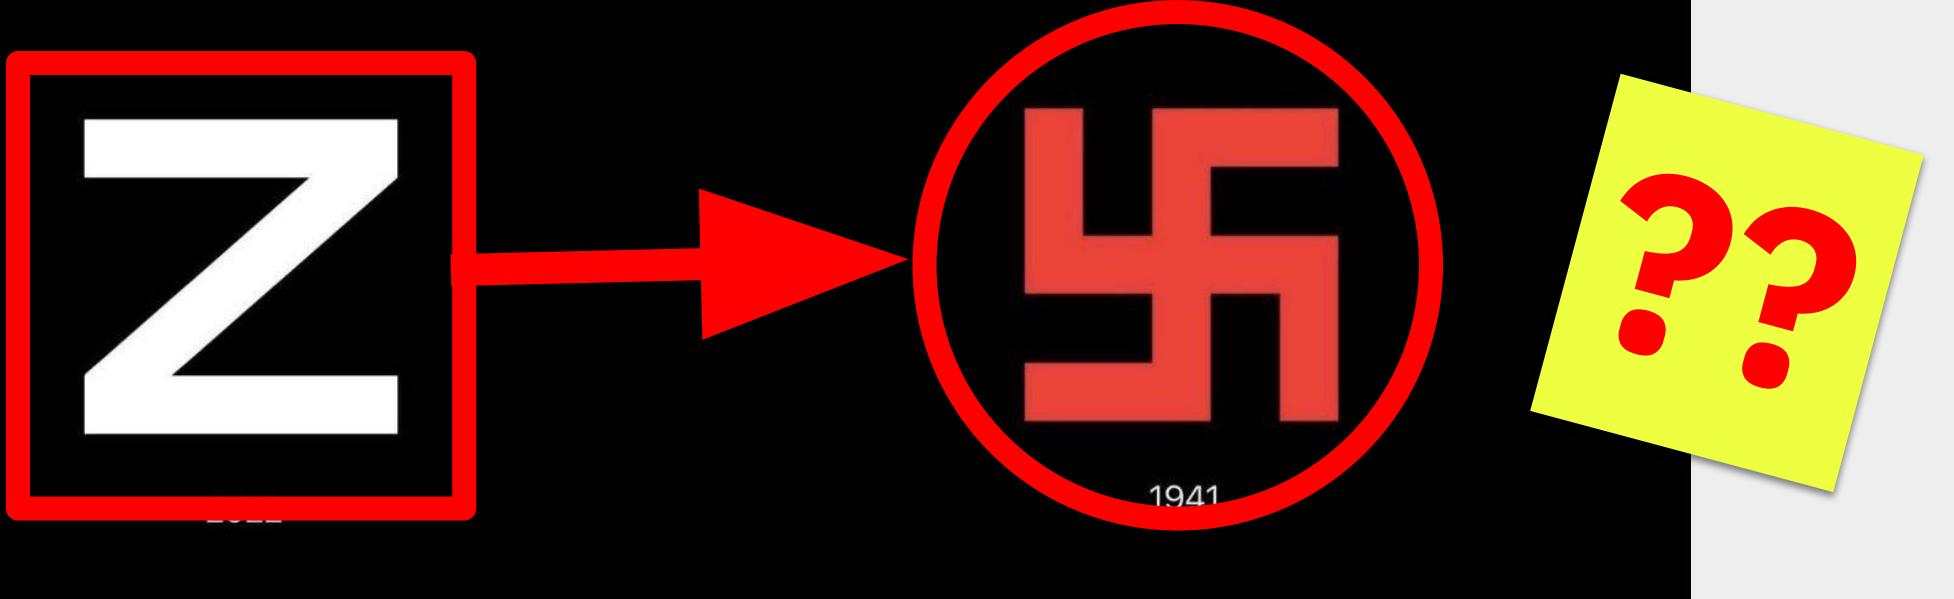

Russians have daubed the "Z" on their cars, sported black hoodies emblazoned with the symbol, and fashioned makeshift "Z" brooches on lapels -- a sign that

And in two slickly produced propaganda videos circulating on social media, young Russians wearing black T-shirts and hooded sweatshirts emblazoned with the letter "Z" and hashtag #СвоихНебросаем, or "we don't abandon our own (guys)," wave Russian flags and voice their support of Putin's war, chanting: "For Russia, for the president. For

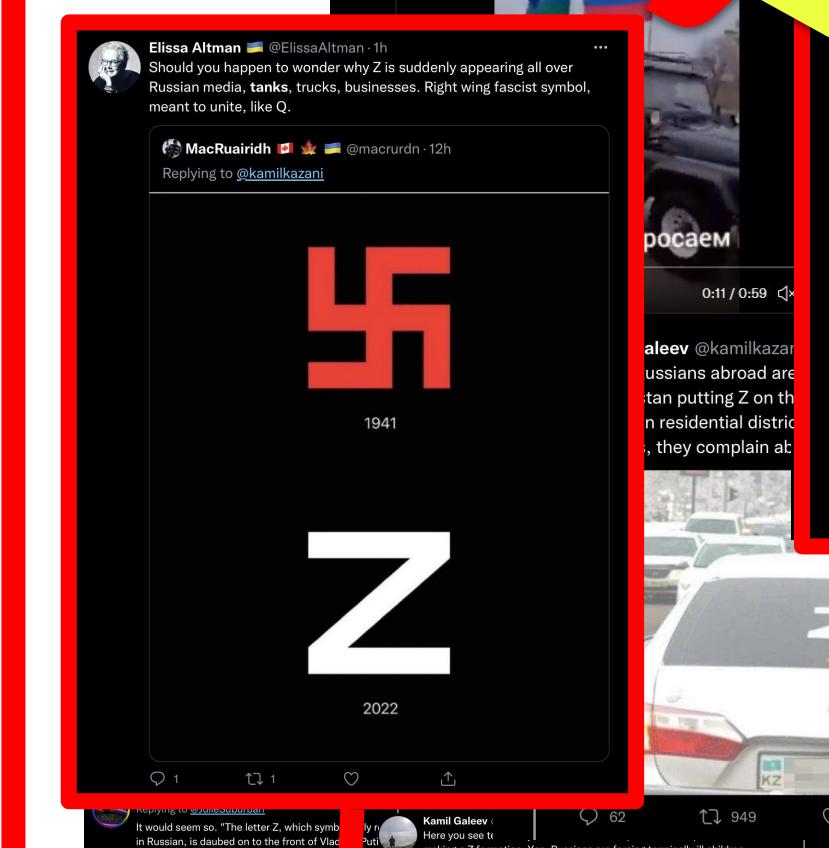

Yep, Z is the new Q.

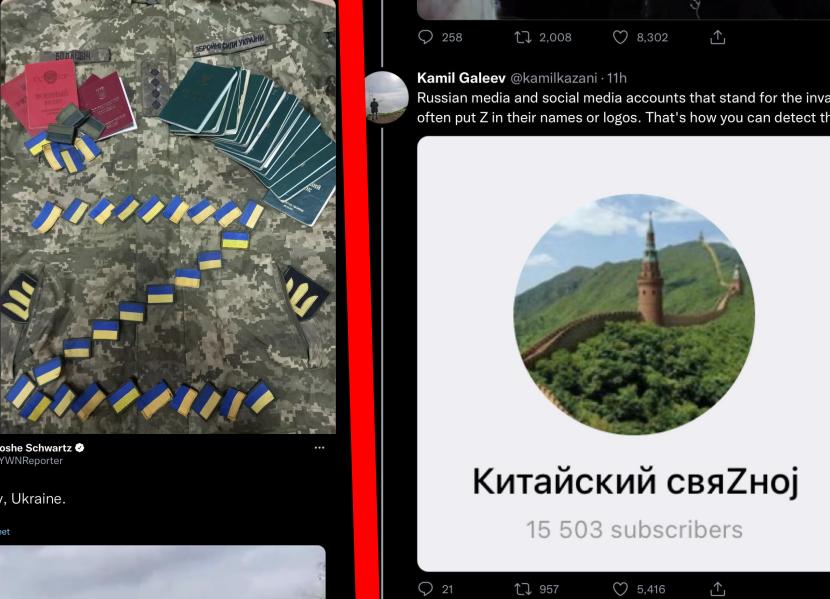

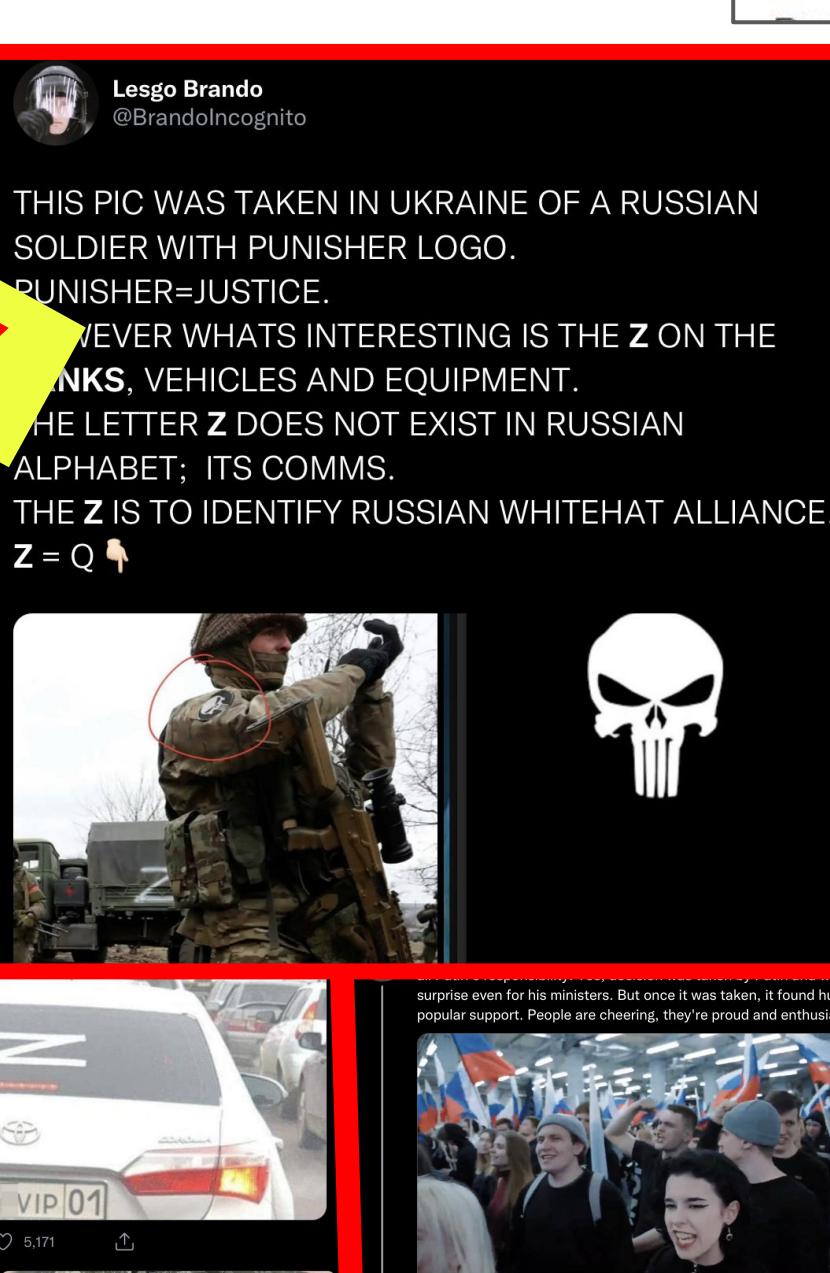

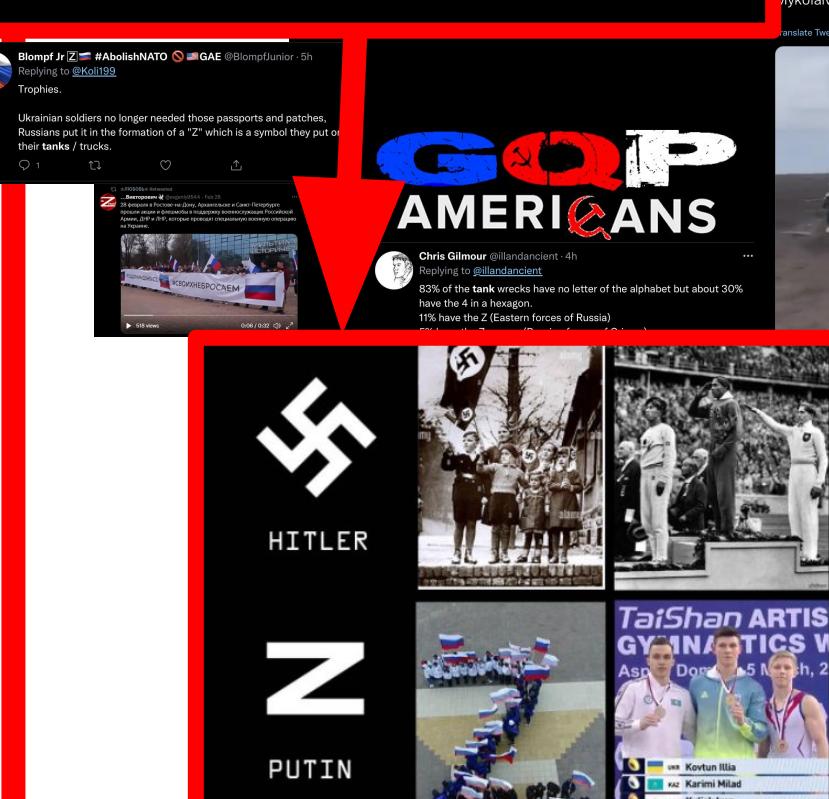

censuring
amplify

censuring
amplify

Yep, Z is the new Q.

But in the days since Moscow ordered the bloody assault on Ukraine, what started as a mysterious military symbol has become a sign of popular support for the war in Russia, and what analysts describe as the unfurling of a chilling new nationalist movement.

Russians have daubed the "Z" on their cars, sported black hoodies emblazoned with the symbol, and fashioned makeshift "Z" brooches on lapels -- a sign that

"This symbol invented just a few days ago became a symbol of new Russian ideology and national identity," Galeev added.

And in two slickly produced propaganda videos circulating on social media, young Russians wearing black T-shirts and hooded sweatshirts emblazoned with the letter "Z" and hashtag #СвоихНебросаем, or "we don't abandon our own (guys)," wave Russian flags and voice their support of Putin's war, chanting: "For Russia, for the president. For

